

BA in American Indian Studies Online

Earn Your BA in American Indian Studies Online Meet the Needs of Indigenous Communities All Over the World

With a Bachelor of Arts in American Indian Studies, you'll be prepared for a variety of careers working with Indigenous communities across the globe. You'll learn about the history, culture, and contemporary lifeways of Native American peoples. You'll explore the ways in which Indigenous communities interact with each other and with outside communities, including the United States government, and you'll learn how those complex relationships continue to evolve.

Program Goals

1. Recognize diversity of tribal communities
2. Value Indigenous knowledges and sustainability
3. Promote economic development and nation-building
4. Enact preservation and promotion of cultural heritage
5. Identify mechanisms of oppression
6. Support processes of decolonization
7. Comprehend global Indigeneity

Estimated Cost

- $29,520–$32,472
Includes Fees

Min. Completion Time

- 2 Years

Program Highlights

- 2 years
- Fully online
- Courses led by expert faculty from SDSU's Department of American Indian Studies and the Sycuan Institute on Tribal Gaming
- Advising services available to all students
- Internships, campus involvement, and career exploration opportunities
- Curriculum driven by relationships with the Elymash Yuuchaap Indigenous Scholars and Leaders Program, SDSU's Native American Student Alliance, the Sycuan Institute on Tribal Gaming, and the Kumeyaay Nation
- Earn a five-course Certificate in Tribal Casino Operations Management from the SDSU Sycuan Institute on Tribal Gaming in your first year of the program

Application Deadline

Fall 2021: Oct. 1, 2020–May 31, 2021

For additional information, please email globalcampus@sdsu.edu or call (619) 594-7700.