Earn Your SDSU Communication Degree On Your Schedule

With the SDSU@Cuyamaca College microsite program, you can earn your Bachelor’s in Communication through SDSU Global Campus without losing your connection to Cuyamaca College.

About the Program

Developed in collaboration with SDSU’s renowned School of Communication, this two-year, fully online communication program will show you how to identify and effectively engage with your audience. You’ll also learn how communication promotes civic engagement in today’s global community, and how communication gives us the tools we need to face the issues facing our local and global communities.

Program Highlights

- Fully online
- Designed for busy working students
- Self-paced format, so you can choose to slow down with a lighter course load or speed up by taking on a heavier class load
- Complete your degree in as little as two years
- Same instructors who teach on-campus courses at SDSU
- Instructional assistance, such as in-person* discussions and coursework guidance at Cuyamaca, provided by SDSU
- Financial aid available
- Exclusive access to many SDSU community programs/services
- Earn the same degree as SDSU on-campus students — a B.A. Applied Arts and Sciences in Communication from San Diego State University

*In-person components are available virtually due to COVID-19 restrictions. Once restrictions are lifted and in-person education resumes at each site, these services will be provided on your community college campus.

Labor Analysis

B.A. In Communication And Media Studies – Nationwide

Job Postings

203,942 - Last 12 months

Projected Growth

+14.38% Over 10 years

Salary Range

$38,000–$81,000

BLS & Burning Glass Technologies, 2020

Want to Learn More?

Contact Miros Gomez from SDSU Global Campus at mgomez6@sdsu.edu or 619-594-1623. You can also contact Amaliya Blyumin, your Transfer Center Coordinator from Cuyamaca College, at cuyamaca.transfer@gcccd.edu or 619-660-4439.