Take the First Steps Towards a Stronger Community with SDSU

With SDSU@San Diego City College, you can finish your Child Development degree at SDSU without sacrificing your relationship with San Diego City College. This degree completion program will help you turn your passion for healthy childhood development into a rewarding career.

Program Highlights

- Two years
- Most courses are online — ideal for working professionals
- 120-hour hands-on* field experience with child and family service provider in San Diego and the surrounding area
- Experienced faculty from SDSU’s Department of Child and Family Development
- Instructional assistance, such as in-person* discussions and coursework guidance at San Diego City College, provided by SDSU
- Student support and academic advising services at San Diego City College, provided by SDSU
- Financial aid opportunities to assist with tuition costs
- Earn the same highly-respected degree as SDSU’s on-campus students

*In-person components are available virtually due to COVID-19 restrictions. Once restrictions are lifted and in-person education resumes at each site, these services will be provided on your community college campus.

Application Requirements

To qualify for admission to the program, you’ll need at least 60 semester (90 quarter) units completed by the end of the term prior to transfer. This includes 27-28 lower division preparation course units for the Child Development major and at least 30 units of General Education, along with any other CSU requirements. You’ll also need a minimum 2.4+ GPA, and you’ll need to pass a background check and provide a Tuberculin clearance to participate in the field placement.

Application Period

Fall 2021 | Oct. 1, 2020-April 30, 2021
