About the Program

SDSU's online B.A. in Communication program is an undergraduate communication program designed for the twenty-first century. You'll learn how effective communication can promote civic engagement, allow for effective participation in today's global community, and enhance your individual well-being and the strength of your relationships. Your online courses are developed and delivered by the expert faculty and lecturers from SDSU's School of Communication, many of whom are repeatedly recognized for their quality teaching with institutional, regional, and national teaching awards, as well as their research in communication-related topics.

Fall 2021 Application Period
