

Advanced Certificate in Biomedical Quality Systems (BQS)

Move Your Career in Quality Management Forward

Become a quality management leader by earning your Advanced Certificate in Biomedical Quality Systems from San Diego State University — one of the only quality programs in California with a specialization in the biomedical and health care industries. If you're passionate about regulatory compliance and bringing safe products to market, this online graduate program will help you acquire the advanced skills you need to move your career in quality management forward.

Program Highlights

- 4 graduate-level courses
- 100% online
- Complete 2 courses before applying
- Earn your certificate in just 9 months
- Created in collaboration with SDSU's College of Sciences
- Expert instructors hold high-level certifications from the American Society of Quality (ASQ)
- Continuously-updated curriculum meets industry standards and latest regulations

Application Period

- Fall 2021 | August 1, 2021
- Spring 2022 | August 2–Nov. 1, 2021

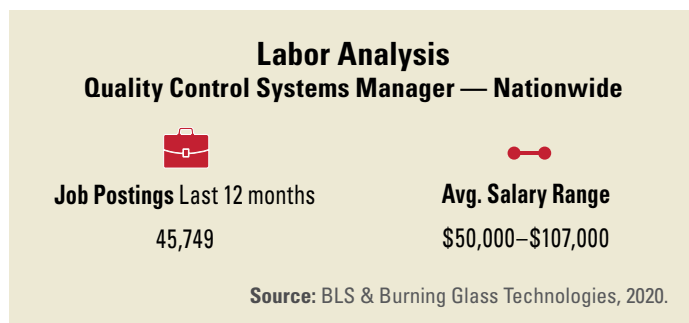

Course List

- Biomedical Quality Systems
- Foundational Quality Systems
- Good Manufacturing, Laboratory, and Clinical Practices
- Document Control Quality System

Interested in Applying?

To qualify for admission to the program, you'll need to hold a bachelor's degree from an accredited institution. You'll also need to satisfy all minimum SDSU requirements, at the time of enrollment.

We understand that every student's academic journey is unique, and we encourage you to contact an Admissions Advisor to find out what you'll need to successfully apply to the program.

For more information, email globalcampus@sdsu.edu or call (619) 594-7700.